

Give to The Gardens

Help us teach and inspire

Tucked away on West Campus is a 40-acre plot that will become home to The Gardens at Texas A&M University. The Gardens will serve as an outdoor classroom for faculty and staff to teach students and the public valuable concepts about food production, landscape beauty and the natural environment. The Gardens will also become a peaceful sanctuary on campus, a place where everyone at Texas A&M and the surrounding community can relax, enjoy and learn.

From continuous giving to naming a garden, donors have deep roots in making The Gardens great. Help us teach and inspire for many, many years to come.
